CCS has Recertified its Quality Management System

CCS Cell Culture Service's Quality Management System has been recertified according to ISO 9001:2008. During the recent years CCS has steadily expanded and improved its administrative and manufacturing procedures. After the initial certification in 2003 the quality management system has now been entirely audited again for the second time, demonstrating a permanent and sustainable implementation of high quality standards at CCS.

An efficient management of quality processes not only leads to a better reliability and satisfaction but also improves operational procedures and the happiness of the employees. "Our reliability and the quality standards of our services confer a major edge towards our competitors" says Dr. Oliver Klotzsche, managing director of CCS Cell Culture Service, and sees the continuous optimization and development of CCS's quality management system affirmed.

CCS supports customers from pharmaceutical and biotechnical industry with custom services including the supply of Frozen Instant Cells and membranes and the custom generation of recombinant cell lines.
